Ladies and Gentlemen:

In accordance with the Swedish Stock Exchange NBK rules, Columbia Wanger Asset Management, L.P. (CWAM) makes the following disclosure:

As of April 10, 2007, the aggregate interest¹ in Hexagon AB held by CWAM² on behalf of its clients is 4,154,500 "B" shares, out of 84,454,000 Hexagon voting shares, or 4.919% of Hexagon AB's voting shares. On April 10, 2007, CWAM disposed of 108,500 "B" Shares which reduced its client's aggregate interest in Hexagon AB to 4,154,500 "B" shares. It is our understanding from review of public filings of Hexagon AB that as of April 10, 2007, Hexagon AB's total outstanding voting shares were 84,454,000 shares. CWAM's disposition therefore caused the aforementioned percentage to decrease to 4.919% from 5.05% as of the prior business day.

Additionally, we have been advised by BAC in connection with the preparation of this report that on March 7, 2007, another subsidiary of BAC, Banc of America Securities, LLC (BAS) disposed of 74 shares of Hexagon AB. BAS's disposition did not trigger a NBK reporting requirement.³

Sincerely,

Bruce Lauer
Columbia Wanger Asset Management, L.P.

¹ CWAM has voting authority and investment discretion over the shares due to its relationships with its clients. CWAM does not have any beneficial ownership in said shares.

² The aforementioned interest is also attributable to Bank of America Corporation (BAC) and its intermediate subsidiaries because CWAM is an indirectly wholly-owned subsidiary of BAC.

³ BAS and CWAM are independent operating units of BAC that are separated from each other and the other operating businesses of BAC by information walls. BAS and CWAM make investment decisions independently from each other and the other businesses of the Bank of America group.
