February Record in Fixed-income Derivatives on the OMX Nordic Exchange

Stockholm, March 10, 2008 – The OMX Nordic Exchange, part of The NASDAQ OMX Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: NDAQ) (NASDAQ OMX Group) announced a new record in fixed-income derivatives trading was set in February on the OMX Nordic Exchange. The average daily trading volume was 158,836 contracts. The previous record was 136,948 contracts per day and was set in September 2007.

“The increased trading in fixed income derivatives in February was mainly driven by global uncertainty regarding the future actions by the leading central banks. Also, the unexpected 25 bp hike by the Swedish central bank triggered increased activity. Furthermore, the current credit market uncertainty has increased the attractiveness of trading straightforward and transparent derivatives against a central counterparty rather than clearing derivatives bilaterally,” says Erik Thedéen, Head of fixed income, Transactions Services Nordics at NASDAQ OMX.

Strong growth for Telecommunication Services sector in February

The sector with the strongest growth in February was Telecommunication Services, for which the trading value increased by 28% compared to previous month.

Share trading in February

The value of average daily share trading amounted to ISK 440.9 billion, as compared to ISK 459.9 billion during the past 12-month period. The average number of trades per business day amounted to 221,543, as compared to 202,414 during the past 12-month period. The total market cap of listed companies at OMX Nordic Exchange amounted to ISK 82,0 billion, compared to ISK 83,1 billion in February 2007.
