Tilgin wins new order on IP technology with Saga in Serbia

Stockholm, Sweden, March 4, 2009: Tilgin, a leading provider of solutions for multiplay and next-generation broadband services, today announces a new strategic order from the system integrator Saga for deployment for a leading Serbian operator. The order is for Tilgin's Home Gateway solution and its latest generation software for managing IP-networks.

Saga and the leading Serbian operator, will deploy Tilgin's home gateway product for fiber to the building (FTTB) connectivity and Tilgin's service and device management software VCM, at the sport and cultural festival Universiade 2009 in Belgrade. This is the "Olympic Games" for students and is staged every two years in a different city. System will deliver state of the art triple play solution for covering Universiade 2009 sport village and HQ and is the first FTTB/FTTH deployment in Serbia.

Delivery and system set-up are scheduled for March and April to be in operation at the games on July 1st-16th. The order value is limited.

That Tilgin has won this order together with system integrator Saga is a milestone in the relationship between the two companies. Saga and Tilgin intend to continue to develop their relationship to reach operators across the region.

"Serbia is a new country for us and we hope the Universiade games will generate visibility for our solutions," says Ola Berglund, CEO at Tilgin. "With this order we are now collaborating with several of the most important telecom operators in Eastern Europe. We've won this order in collaboration with the system integrator Saga is a good sign and we hope to extend our common business."

Saga is the largest system integrator company in Serbia and leader in the field of network infrastructure solutions for service providers with broad experience in IP/MPLS networks and NGN solutions for SP. Saga has partner relations with more than 40 leading vendors in networking and IT worldwide, including status of Cisco Gold partner and Juniper Networks Elite Partner. Saga was founded in November 1989 as a privately owned company and in 2008. Saga has extended regional presence with local offices in Montenegro and Republic of Srpska (Bosnia).
