

Relocation of kitchen production from Älmhult to Tidaholm

The trade-union negotiations concerning the relocation of kitchen production from Nobia's plant in Älmhult to the plant in Tidaholm were concluded on September 7, 2010. The assembly and distribution of kitchens for the Myresjökök brand will gradually be relocated to Tidaholm as of November 2010.

The changes will generate approximately 60 new jobs in Tidaholm, while a lack of work due to the relocation of production will affect about 100 employees in Älmhult. Negotiations regarding seniority will begin in the coming days. The company will offer transition support for effected employees.

The purpose of the change is to strengthen Nobia's competitiveness by pursuing fewer and larger production units.
