Tivoli, 28 September 2010

Tivoli A/S – stock exchange announcement no. 7 – 2010

Tivoli publishes its number of visitors after each season and on publication of the annual report and interim reports.

The summer season 2010 ran from 13 April to 27 September; 168 days in total. The summer season 2009 lasted 169 days.

Number of visitors	2009	2010
Summer season	2,810,000	2,611,000

"The good news this summer season is that Tivoli guests spent more money per capita. The bad news is the 7 per cent decrease in visitor numbers. Of course we are disappointed about the decrease. However, we are pleased to find that the total turnover is close to last year's. Thus we can maintain the expectations for the year's profit before tax at DKK 20 million," says Claus Dyhr, CFO at Tivoli.

"We know the primary cause for the decrease in visitor numbers, namely the weather. This season has seen some extreme weather, with a long and very cold spring and an extremely wet late summer. Tivoli's peak season fell in a period of dry, sunny weather, and proved that visitor numbers increase in good weather. This has been true throughout the season. During the summer season 2010 there has been 407 millimetres of rain against 303 millimetres in an average year and 276 millimetres in 2009."

Tivoli's number of visitors will be published next on 25 October 2010, including the visitor numbers for Halloween in Tivoli.

Yours faithfully,
