Cybercom wins a portal project for AMS Denmark

AMS Denmark, the Danish national labour market board, has chosen Cybercom for development and application management of WorkInDenmark, its new web portal. The assignment is initially for two years.

WorkInDenmark is a service to help job seekers in other countries to find available positions in Denmark. Employers in Denmark can also use the service to find employees abroad.

"This assignment is strategically important and another step to strengthen our position in the public sector in Denmark," says Göran Lawesson, business unit manager for Cybercom in Malmö, Sweden.

"We chose Cybercom because their proposition provides the best delivery organisation and the best technology solution, particularly for usability," says Jeppe Lundin, project manager for AMS Denmark. "Cybercom has been our supplier for several years, and we appreciate its operational insight, technical competence, and delivery capacity."

Cybercom was previously awarded the responsibility of development and application management of AMS Denmark's external web services for job seekers and employers in Denmark.
