Today, Eva Gidlöf resigned – on her own volition – as a member of Cybercom's board. Gidlöf was appointed to a business division manager position at TietoEnator, which is why she is immediately resigning.

“Eva Gidlöf contributed key competence to the board,” says Wigon Thuresson, Cybercom's board chairman, “and her efforts were always in Cybercom's best interest. Considering the circumstances, she can no longer continue with Cybercom board work, so she leaving her board position. She will not be replaced during the current fiscal year.”
