2. Risk Factors

Straumur considers the following factors liable to affect its ability to fulfil its obligations as provided for in these Bills and to be material for the purpose of assessing the market risks associated with the Bills. Most of these factors are contingencies which may or may not occur and the Issuer is not in a position to express a view on the likelihood of any such contingency occurring.

The potential investor should read the section on risk factors in conjunction with the other sections of this Prospectus, and all public announcements made by the Issuer before making a decision to invest in the Bills. Investments in the Bills may not be suitable for all investors. Therefore, based on their own independent review and such professional advice as they deem appropriate under the circumstances, investors should consider closely the risk of investing in the Bills before deciding whether to carry out such investment.

In the estimation of the Issuer, the factors described below represent the principal risks inherent in any investment in the Bills in question, but the inability of the Issuer to pay interest, principal or other amounts on or in connection with the Bills may occur or arise for reasons other than currently anticipated.

Market Risk

Market risk refers to the risk related to all commercial papers of the same type (stocks, bills, options). With fixed-income securities, such as bills, the most important market risk is interest rate risk. Interest rate risk refers to the risk of fluctuation in the market value of bills due to interest rate movements. Higher interest rates result in lower bill values and vice versa. Interest rate risk is higher for bills with longer maturities/duration. Investors should study the market risk related to the Bills and evaluate the impact caused by changes in their interest rate level.

Credit Risk

Credit risk refers primarily to the risk involved with debt investments such as bills. The most important credit risk is the risk of non-repayment of the principal by the issuer. If the issuer fails to repay the principal, the issuer will default on the bills. For most debt instruments, investors must assess the credit quality of the issuer and decide whether the extra yield offered compared to the relevant treasury bill (or equivalent benchmark) is sufficiently attractive.

Liquidity Risk

An application has been made to admit the Bills to trading on the regulated market of OMX ICE. However, there can be no assurance that an active public market for the Bills will develop. Straumur quotes the Bills daily on the OMX Nordic Exchange Iceland hf., which increases their liquidity. Nevertheless before investing in the Bills, investors should consider the degree of liquidity they need from the securities in which they invest.

Legal and Regulatory Risk

The terms and condition of the Bills are based on Icelandic legislation in force as of the date of this Securities Note. No assurance can be given as to the impact of any possible amendments of legislations, change in administrative practices or judicial decision after the date of this Securities Note . Such risks are though minimal in Iceland, since there is consensus on the structure and key values of the market economy.

3. Notice to Investors

Each investor of the Bills must determine the suitability of the investment in light of his own circumstances and in particular have sufficient knowledge and experience to make a meaningful evaluation of the Bills. The investor should consider carefully and understand the merits and risks of investing in the Bills and the information contained or incorporated by reference in the Prospectus, comprising of the Registration Document made public on 30th. June 2008 and this Securities Note. Each investor should have access to, and knowledge of, appropriate analytical tools to evaluate, in the context of their particular financial situation, an investment in the Bills and the impact the Bills will have on their overall investment portfolio and further have sufficient financial resources and liquidity to bear all of the risks of an investment in the Bills. Each investor should understand thoroughly the terms of the Bills and be familiar with the behaviour of any relevant indices and financial markets; and be able to evaluate (either alone or with the help of a financial adviser) possible scenarios for factors that may affect their investment and their ability to bear the applicable risks.

The Prospectus has been prepared to provide clear and thorough information on the Bills and potential investors should familiarize themselves thoroughly with this Prospectus. The investor should further consider all announcements and communications from the Issuer that are available on the Issuer's webpage; <http://www.straumur.net>
