

CybAero proposes new board member

CybAero's election committee has proposed Mats Jacobson to the Board of Directors of CybAero AB.

Mats Jacobson (born 1960) has been a business growth consultant with Ahrens & Partners since 2012, where he focuses on helping companies experience fast international growth and become highly profitable. Jacobson holds a degree in mathematics/computer science from Lund University (1985). From 2002 to 2009, he was the CEO of software company Scalado at Ideon Science Park in Lund, Sweden, where he had a big and unique opportunity to take the company on a journey of growth and see sales double seven years in a row. In 2012, Scalado was sold to Nokia Mobile, and it is one of Industrifonden's best investments.

Jacobson also served as a business coach and consultant for several startups between 2009 and 2012. His foremost expertise is within strategy and marketing.

"If the board of directors approves the election committee's proposal, we'll be gaining a very solid addition to the board with specific knowledge and first-hand experience of fast-growing companies. CybAero is in the middle of an exciting phase of rapid growth, and this puts heavy and unexpected demands on the board of directors. Mats has followed us as a business growth consultant over the past few years and now we can have access to his unique experience and knowledge in the boardroom," says Mikael Hult, CEO CybAero.
