

Mycronic introduces jet dispensing capability on MY600 platform

Täby, 9 November, 2015 - Mycronic introduces new high-speed and high-precision jet dispensing capabilities on the MY600 platform at Productronica 2015 in Munich, 10-13 November. Mycronic has developed the technology on the existing MY600 platform.

Mycronic's business area SMT (Surface Mount Technology) offers flexible production solutions for electronics manufacturing. The product offering includes production equipment for application of solder paste, robots for mounting electronic components on circuit boards (pick & place), automated storage solutions and software.

Now Mycronic is again expanding the capabilities of its highly versatile MY600 solder paste jet printing platform. With new extended jet dispensing capabilities, the high-performance MY600 platform makes it possible for the electronics industry to improve productivity when dispensing a wide range of fluids. The technology is well suited for a variety of applications used in the semiconductor and SMT industry, such as semiconductor chip encapsulation, cavity fill and conductive adhesive dispensing.

Used as a jet dispenser, the MY600 achieves micrometer precision while delivering throughputs 2 to 10 times higher than those of traditional dispensers, depending on the application. These productivity gains are yet another example of Mycronic's ability to give customers a leading technology edge within the electronics industry. The new jet dispensing capabilities are scheduled to be available first half of 2016.
