Unibet's CEO Petter Nylander to be transferred from the Netherlands to France on Wednesday

The Dutch and the French authorities have now agreed that Unibet's CEO Petter Nylander will be transferred from the Netherlands to France on Wednesday 31 October 2007.

Unibet's CFO and acting CEO Ragnar Hellenius comments:

"This is a very complicated legal process and we will of course follow the instructions from the authorities. We take for granted that when Petter is finally on French soil on Wednesday, the judge will release him. For us, Petter's release is most important and we are working with the authorities to facilitate this process."
