INVISIO receives new follow-up order from the Australian Defense

INVISIO (IVSO), which develops and sells communication systems with hearing protection, has received an additional order from the Australian Department of Defense's LAND 125 Program. The order value amounts to approximately SEK 15 million and deliveries are scheduled through 2016, starting in the second quarter.

The order is the third from the customer in a short time under the five-year agreement awarded in October 2015.

"We are pleased that the customer continues in its efforts to replace existing communications and hearing protection systems with our efficient solution. The customer gradually provides their army units with the new equipment according to their internal acquisition strategy" said Lars Højgård Hansen, CEO of INVISIO.

The order was placed by INVISIO's Australian partner Defcon Technologies and includes the INVISIO S10 communications system with headsets for use with a radio. The system ensures a good hearing protection while the wearer is able to communicate and maintain situational awareness.
