RTX presents a new product series at CeBIT

As announced in our latest annual report for 2015/16, in the financial year 2015/16 RTX initiated the development of a new product series that will complement our existing communication solutions. The new product series consists of variants of headsets for office environments. At first the target group for the products is the existing customers, to whom RTX supplies communication systems and handsets.

The product series is presented at RTX's stand at the CeBIT fair in Hannover during 20-24 March 2017. As with other products from RTX these products will be customised, distributed and sold in the customers' own brands. The first launches are expected in the second half year of the financial year 2016/17. The expected revenue generated from these products are included in the announced expectations for 2016/17.

Yours sincerely

Peter Røpke

CEO, RTX A/S
