

TowerJazz Proposes to Accelerate Conversion of the Existing Series F Convertible Bonds with the Intent of Increased 2015 and 2016 Net Margins

Offer is Designed to Accelerate the Conversion Reducing the Company's Cost for the Lifetime of the Series F Bonds, Decrease Existing Convertible Debt and Coupon Payments, Increase Profitability, Strengthen the Balance Sheet and Associated Financial Ratios

Migdal Haemek, Israel – March 10, 2015 – TowerJazz, the global specialty foundry leader, today announced it will offer an acceleration mechanism to its existing Series F convertible bonds, available to all such holders, targeting a conversion of approximately 33% of its outstanding bonds. The transaction is intended to increase the Company's operating and financial flexibility, reduce interest expenses, increase profitability, strengthen the balance sheet and associated financial ratios and simplify the Company's capital structure.

The Series F convertible bonds issued in 2010 and 2012, carry a coupon of 7.8% and a conversion ratio of approximately $10 per share. The outstanding amount of this Series F is approximately $120 million with 4 semi-annual coupons remaining payable in cash during 2015 and 2016 totaling approximately $15 million, assuming the debenture holders do not convert prior to the final maturity date.

The terms of these convertibles do not enable the Company to force early repayment, early redemption or early conversion. However, through a public structured offer, the Company can enable all holders of Series F convertible bonds to accelerate the exchange of their Series F bonds into shares.

The Company will publish a supplemental shelf offering report and shelf take down document in Israel in which it will limit the offer to approximately $40 million of its existing Series F convertibles. The shares underlying these convertibles are already included in the Company's diluted share count since their issuance in 2010 and 2012 and reflect approximately 4 percent of the total diluted share count, which, unless accelerated by this transaction, may be issued during 2015 and/ or 2016 in accordance with the holders' discretion. If more than $40 million holders of debentures are tendered in the offer, the Company will allocate the exchange on a pro rata basis among tendering holders. In order to achieve the accelerated conversion target and save 4 future coupons totaling 15.6% of the bonds' par value over the coming two years, the Company will offer the holders a conversion premium of approximately 1%, based on the current TASE trading prices, reflecting a premium of the bonds' trading price in TASE over the underlying shares' market price. Bonds F closing market price in TASE as of March 9, 2015 was 1.893 NIS, reflecting a conversion premium of approximately 1% over the share closing price of 68.300 NIS (approximately $17 per share) as of such date.

All holders of Series F convertibles will have a period of approximately two weeks, commencing upon the filing of the shelf take down detailed offer, to decide whether to participate in the exchange offer. No bondholder has any obligation to agree to the offer. The offer will be covered by the Israeli shelf prospectus filed in February 2013, as amended to reflect this exchange offer and any subsequent shelf take down filing which will disclose the detailed terms. The Company may change the amount and terms during the offering period and any change will be publicly announced as required by applicable law.
