

cBrain releases F2 Manager for iPad

New iPad App for paperless public administration. Secure support for meetings, approval processing and Introductions.

Copenhagen - November 12, 2012. cBrain has released F2 Manager, a new iPad App for paperless public administration and corporate meetings at the Apple Appstore.

F2 Manager represents a new generation of secure software tool for executives who want to eliminate all the stacks of papers they bring for meetings and eliminate paper based approval processes. The F2 Manager App offers seamless and secure integration with corporate data, based on encrypted lines, as well as the freedom of full offline functionality.

Now executives can prepare for meetings on the iPad with access to all case folders and meeting documents, both at the office and in the flight. This includes support for personal annotations and comments, as well as an support for informal Chat based discussions between participants and virtual votings. For public organization executives like a Permanent Secretary, Politicians or Mayor, F2 Manager furthermore offers support for introduction handling (approval process), thereby eliminating not only meeting papers but also eliminating papers for formal approvals.

cBrain expects that iPad/tablet based Apps will be a strong driver for paperless public administration, and cBrain has already notes a solid interest for the new F2 Manager product.

F2 Manager works fully integrated with the F2 product line, a revolutionary and fully integrated standard product for knowledge production and public administration, which has been implemented in both public and private organizations including 7 Danish Ministries. In 2011, 2 Danish Ministries received the Danish Digitalization Award based on the measurable effects and savings following their F2 implementation.
