

Advenica delivers products equivalent to 10 MSEK for a major government customer in Sweden

The cyber security company Advenica delivers the solutions, SecuriCDS ZoneGuard, SecuriCDS DD1000A and SecuriCDS1000i from the company's product family Cross Domain Solutions for an existing customer. The products ensure a controlled flow of information between different IT systems with high assurance.

The company's cash flow will increase by more than 10 MSEK and delivery is immediate. The deal is the largest in the company's history for the product family Cross Domain Solutions.

"We're looking forward to delivering these products to the customer in question and to deepen the relationship further. The need for secure information solutions continues to increase and Advenica are proud to provide authorities with effective solutions that meet the high demands of ensuring both the confidentiality and integrity of information exchange at various levels of security."

Jonas Dellenvall, CTO, Advenica AB

SecuriCDS ZoneGuard enables a strictly controlled and filtered information exchange between different networks. The product is adapted to be placed between different networks that are typically not connected because of different levels of security. SecuriCDS ZoneGuard ensures that only information that is defined in an information security policy can be transferred between different security domains.

The Data diodes, SecuriCDS DD1000A and SecuriCDS DD1000i, ensures unidirectional information exchange which means that the information can only pass in one direction and thereby prevent sensitive information from being driven in the opposite direction.
